

---

Volunteer Internship Opportunity to Work as 'Field Assistant'

Volunteer internship opportunities are available under ongoing project 'Patterns and Drivers of Urban Biodiversity in Southern Asia and Western Europe' at the 'Chair of Wildlife Ecology and Management' in 'University of Freiburg', Germany. Any individual researchers / students with a strong interest to work on urban biodiversity can apply. Based on successful completion of tasks, applicants will obtain a certificate confirming the duration of their voluntary contribution.

Duration: 2-8 weeks possible. Specific time period is flexible and will be fixed based on agreement with applicants and project necessity.

Tasks: To record bird species at a particular sampling site within city area.

General Requirements:

1. Applicants are free to select their own study city located within Southern Asia / Western Europe.
2. Applicants must agree to their fixed time period for completion of tasks.
3. Familiarity on local bird species identification and data collection techniques is necessary.
4. Applicants must afford their own travel cost.

Application: Interested persons can apply in writing with a CV and short motivation letter. Please mention the name of city and your intended time-period during application.

Contact: Marufa Sultana, marufa.sultana@wildlife.uni-freiburg.de

Project Details: <https://www.wildlife.uni-freiburg.de/research>